Mother turned in murderer son

A man who murdered his fiancée and then claimed that she had gone missing on Valentine's Day was turned over to police by his mother, Hull Crown Court was told. Paul Dyson, 31, was jailed for life after pleading guilty to strangling Joanne Nelson, 22, after an argument over laundry at their home in Hull, and then hiding her body in a woodland grave near Malton, North Yorkshire. He confessed to a friend, who told Dyson's mother. She then informed police.

Girl dies in fire

A five-year-old girl died after a fire broke out in a wooden chalet at the Silverwoods Motel in Thorrington, Essex. A motel employee rescued a woman and two children. The family had been temporarily housed there by Colchester council. The fire is not being treated as suspicious.
